To whom it may concern,

Lodge Dale Farm was bought in 1969 with 5 existing stables as shown in Appendix 1. In April 1996 6 additional stables and 2 loose boxes were provided within existing buildings adjacent to the derelict farmhouse. The purpose of these were to house our existing breeding horses and liveries. As the business grew in 1998, 6 more stables were erected in 2 blocks (2 blocks of 3) under the existing building opposite the derelict farmhouse, which was erected in 1986. These were to accommodate an ever increasing breeding stock as well as liveries. My aim with the breeding stock is to improve the quality of British bred horses by using international bloodlines, following the British Equestrian Federation guidelines.

The 6 stables opposite the derelict farmhouse, were refurbished in January 2004, this was to enable the business to progress and keep moving forward.

We can clarify that the manege at Lodge Dale Farm, Hollington has been in operation since June 1997. The purpose of this is for ourselves and clients to exercise the horses.

We have provided you with some testimonials from clients of which were here at the time, and also a brief account from the builder whom constructed the stable blocks for us and the contractor used to landscape the manege.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours faithfully

K Turner R Dale
