Dear Sir/Madam,

I am disturbed that yet another planning request has occured on the high street, with no formal notice nearby for local residents.

If this proposal were to go ahead, it will:

a) Block the only view left from our home of the surrounding hills (our house formally being called 'High View').

b) Block the evening light in the downstairs of a house that already struggles with having almost no back light due to the nature of how it is semi detached. This will also prevent the evening sunset light, which was one of the main attractions when purchasing the property. This change to the view and lighting from and within the property is a particularly depressing thought and is likely to negatively impact of the mental health of myself and my partner.

c) Will make the already heavily populated street even more crammed with cars and visiting vehicles.

d) Will more than likely be at odds with the Grade II listed building opposite.

It seems as if there is a general desire to cram as many properties in as small a space as possible for no apparent consideration to the community who live here, except for those who benefit financially. Surely this is not the appropriate reasons for such plans to go ahead?
