To whom it concerns
I write as a resident of Rownall wishing to remain anonymous concerning planning applications by Messers Pointons, they have recently had a planning application passed for a large agricultural building to house two hundred cattle adjacent to an existing building of the same size being agricultural, only a small open piece at one end has been used for agriculture the rest of the building is totally enclosed and is used to store material from the animal by products factory at Cheddleton, this building has long permission to do so and although being agricultural and over ten years old has never been used for agriculture, the contents are not used on their land, So why could this building not have been used for its intended purpose?

They also own three more large buildings on another farm in Rownall road which they have applied to convert to industrial, again these could have been used, they are also in the process of selling their cattle and land, and applying to cover large areas of land with batteries and solar panels. Their workers can tell you they are going out of farming and the new building is to store material from the factory. This building should not be allowed
