Comments: A replacement metal fence has been erected in place of a soft wood paling fence on the roadside boundary. This has the potential to inflict serious injury in the event of a road traffic accident and severely impacts upon pedestrians at a pinch point. Previously the forecourt was a refuge for pedestrians and visitors to the premises. Customers seated close to the fence are vulnerable to traffic which and particularly hgv's and agricultural traffic that frequents the road. Does the application include the replacement fence and precise location?
