Comments: As a delivery driver who regularly delivers to the properties on Blakeley Lane, I have had to reverse off the A52 to gain access to the properties, this is if there is cars preventing me turning round at the end of the lane. Since the hardcore car parking spot has been installed it has increased the space available for turning, allowing me to draw down the lane, turn around and complete the delivery without having to reverse off the main road, this is obviously a lot less dangerous. Therefore I support the planning application to keep the parking spot as it is as it is very beneficial to any larger vehicles that have to deliver to these properties.

It seems like the young couple have tried to improve the property by removing their car from the shared lane therefore allowing more space for everyone else who uses the lane, they obviously did not realise the upset that the small area of hardcore would cause to a small minority of local people. They probably only saw the benefits of moving their car onto their property and off the shared access lane.

I also think that it is wrong to implicate the applicants when it comes to accidents that have occurred on the A52, it is a completely unjustifiable, a one car parking spot being added to the property will not increase traffic joining the A52 as the vehicle will be parked at the property regardless.
