Regarding planning permission for a bungalow.

I disagree with this as the land just needs to be left alone especially due to the state its been left to get in, and when previous work men the owner hired to do a job didn't think twice about digging up my sky cables and ruining it all not letting me no anything. It's in an awkward place it would cause to much noise and disruption cars would not be able to get in and out or pedestrians I can imagine work would go on at hours when it shouldn't be. There is no room for big lorries if they had to deliver materials, cars are parked there by people who live there and its not fare, its on a bad bend off a main road. Its a quiet area and it needs to stay that way.
