Further to my previous objection I would like to add that as the access road feeds both the housing estate and the industrial estate that cars and vans parked on the access road will lead to traffic chaos. The "low cost" housing is situated around the site entrance and the garages on other new builds are so small they are not large enough for anything other than small cars. I have seen this on other new estates I have lived next to leading to 2 and 3 car families parking on the estate roads.

Then you have the "white van" drivers delivering to the houses who will park anywhere.
