Truly disappointed to see the environmental vandalism that has taken place on the section of railway line near to Barnfields, this was a lovely nature corridor and amenity for local people.

Some of the trees appear to have been butchered. There's a lack of joined up thinking in plans that involve destroying wildlife habitats, this is just the latest. Staffordshire is already being hugely impacted by the progression of HS2 through the county, with a disregard for all nature, wildlife and ancient woodlands that stand in its path..

Moorlands council declared a climate emergency approx 3 years ago and have subsequently failed to act as though it's an emergency, in fact sanctioning such environmentally destructive work is the opposite. Shame on the council / people who've allowed this to go ahead to facilitate someone's money making; particularly at a time when many birds will be nesting
