Comments: Good Evening,

I have watched with interest as the applicant and the architectural firm they are employing have made very slight alterations to the gateway application for the purposes of changing the field to a building plot by removing sliver after sliver of existing hedgerow to no fundamental change beyond the destruction of the hedgerow itself.

Whilst this may be entertaining or frustrating to those watching, the latter for us neighbouring the small field/nature reserve, we were wondering how long this repetitive apply-refuse-reapply process will continue when all the the issues raised by people and departments objecting have not been addressed and the dangers for birds, parents, children and other road users have been apparently ignored.

Could a decision please be made soon, so that if necessary those concerned can lodge appeals to protect nature, safety and the environment above capitalism and profiteering ?

No disrespect intended towards the decision makers but this process seems endless, embarrassing and frustrating to all those involved or invested.

With respect,

G Furnival
