Comments: It's no surprise the parish council have reacted negatively against this as they seem to want the cash and local tourism the park brings in, but react negatively to any improvements the park ask for.

The income into the area, plus increase in jobs and resources for the area are needed in a time where we are living through the worst cost of living crisis on top of bubbling unemployment. Yet the parish council feel they can bully the council, park and public into their wants and needs. The park has been on site since 1980 with over 40 years of investment into the local area. If the local parish are so unhappy with developments, maybe they need to look at moving to a new town.
