Comments: We are strongly opposed to this application.

There are already two sites dealing with fallen stock within 5 miles so why is there a need for another one?

The smell will not just emanate from the site itself, but also in the transportation of the dead animals, which will in turn result in noise pollution and extra traffic.

The smell will affect local residents, many of whom have tourism linked businesses bringing money into the local economy. These businesses will be adversely affected.

The water run-off and drainage present environmental concerns.

For local residents, this will also affect property prices as well as the businesses they are trying to make a success of.

We really feel that yet another site is unnecessary and detrimental to those living and enjoying the beautiful area in which we live.
