Comments: I'm not sure this land is suitable for alpacas or any animals to that matter. much of it (around 50%) is laid to wet grasses. the field is often water logged. it's also not very big and so unlikely to cater for more than 1 or 2 roaming animals at best. The horse box is in fact a transporter, which from the exterior installations indicates living accommodation within, with heating and and a flush toilet. The need for a transporter (AKA 'horse box') on site to move an animal or two doesn't stack up in my view. this aligned with the installation of an electricity and a water supply suggests other motivations possibly
