Comments: As a local resident, I am a little perturbed as to why this planning application has not been publicised. In fact, the only reason we are aware of the situation is because of hearsay. As a professional, who works in an education setting in a particularly deprived area of Stoke on Trent, I am more than aware of the processes of social care involvement, including those cases which deal with children who demonstrate extremely challenging behaviour. A house in the centre of a large, family orientated estate is far from being an ideal location. The application states access to lots of public facilities, however if thorough research has been carried out, the company would soon realise the the idyllic facilities listed are far from accurate. In the past, antisocial behaviour has taken place in the play area directly behind the dwelling (evidence of damage is still evident) from children without behavioural difficulties never mind those with. We purchased our house as a long term family home in a quiet location, where we want to raise our children without the disruptions of a care home and the challenges they bring. Whilst we strong feel empathetic towards those children who have found themselves requiring this facility, we believe that this family filled estate is not the right location.
