Submission: Objection

Comments: The land is legally owned by a farmer who has a need to graze and protect his livestock.

Just because the previous owners allowed people to freely trespass in the past does not give the public a right to continue to do so.

The land is his and should be respected.

These are plenty of green spaces available in Leek. Theses is also a public footpath is very close proximity to this land.

If this land was given over to the public as a village green, Who will maintain it?

A farmed peice of agricultural land needs to be cared for by the farmer and will not dip into already stretched public funds.
