Comments: Whilst it's great that there is investment going into the leisure centre, it doesn't feel like the user has been placed at the heart of the design. Specifically there is no where for spectators to watch swimming. That is a huge part of the swimming process and also safety. If parents can't watch they will just drop their kids off and not only is that less than ideal for an emergency situation, they are also not learning and being part of their child's journey. Also what is the point in having a pool big enough to host galas if no one can watch. Ill thought through.
