In respect of an insurer accessing a risk (insureds business), insurers decision is based on the nature of the business, claims history and risk within the surrounding area.

If there is a material change to a business or the surrounding area, this could result in an increase in premiums or insurers may not insurance cover as the risk could be considered too high of an exposure to their book of business.

Due to the nature of your business, there are limited insurers who are prepared to provide cover.

If you should have any other questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Kind regards
