Comments: I object to the planning as it's a green belt area. If the site was untidy it should have been returned to an acceptable standard for green belt and not changed, without planning, to a brown site. If this goes ahead it throws the doors open to all landowners to set these sites up and would destroy green belt which is protected by law. It's not a suitable site as the entrance to the lane has a blind corner. Water off wetley common often runs down the road past the entrance like a river in the winter months often it freezes. And with the lane not being gritted it freezes for long periods of time making it a danger for any vehicle which travels up the bank. The site is quite open and opposite a unique moorland, wetley common, and will be a blot on the landscape of this beautiful green belt area.
