Submission: Objection

Comments: The Application is not for a minor change to granted permission, and has implications far outside the originally permitted scope, which will result in far greater environmental damage than allowed for:

Estimate of soil and clay to be removed - 85000m³. In addition bedrock excavation under batter beds.

Dispose of this by dumping locally - to a >0.5ha field by Little Spink, north of Rownall. Calculation suggests this will result in creating a mound @17m tall. This takes no account of excavated soil being less compact and having greater volume. (This also makes restoration to agricultural use later practically impossible.

The equipment used is different (Battery containers).

The Battery site is extended.

This is in effect a new scheme, and not minor changes to the approved scheme
