Comments: The plan appears to be in keeping with the original architectural vision of the designer of the property, who had it for many years as his home. It is also similar to other properties on the road and thus in keeping with general makeup of the Cheddleton Heath. Cheddleton Heath has a wide range of houses and house styles, across a wide demographic, having been built throughout most of the last century and this will be a welcome transformation of the house. It should be noted that the current owners have gone out of their way to keep us informed of their plans and we are aware of a number of positive revisions before the submitted plans.
