Comments: We feel the same way about the planning and below is what we felt last time

Comments: Apesford is a small rural hamlet not a growing village, so it would not be in ‐ keeping with the rural area as it has already had a number of dwellings passed at this site, which are saving old historic farm buildings. Two extra new dwellings are been proposed which are making it more like a village, and the farm buildings are relatively modern buildings which don't need preserving. The proposed finish will not be the same style as they are now, and they will not be in ‐ keeping with the surrounding dwellings which are made of stone. There will be more lighting interfering with the wild life in the area and making the area more busy.

We feel that the old farm buildings should stay as they are because they are more in keeping with the size of the farm as it has a smaller acreage than it had before when it was been farmed.
