There was an existing stable and tack room on this site. Full planning permission was given for this in around 1990 and the new stable is therefore a replacement and sits on the same concrete base as the original. We are somewhat surprised that planning permission is necessary in these circumstances.

Our house overlooks the field in question and in our opinion there is no adverse affect on the green belt - in fact the stable rather enhances it.

Without the stable the young girls in the family would be unable to keep their pony on the field and so we trust that planning permission will be granted.
