The proposed changes appear to be a thoughtful and sympathetic improvement to an existing older property. The design respects the character of the original house while providing practical updates that will help ensure it remains suitable for modern living.

The alterations are proportionate and well considered, and they do not appear to have an unacceptable impact on the appearance of the surrounding area or on neighbouring properties.

In my view, this proposal strikes an appropriate balance between respecting the building's existing character and allowing reasonable improvements. For these reasons, I hope the planning authority will look favourably on the application and grant planning permission
